BACKGROUND AND WORK:

Although she comes from a family of painters, it was not until 1999 that Françoise d'Andrimont began painting. After studying interior design at the École de Saint-Luc in Brussels, she began working for several architectural firms. To give more space to her own creativity and her passion for drawing and painting, she focused on graphic design and commercial art. She eventually founded her own advertising studio.

She taught herself to paint in watercolours. Shortly afterwards, she took acrylic painting workshops and a course on mixed media at the art studios in Wezembeek-Oppem. It was there that she defined and refined her talents.

"Drawing, painting and creating give me deep satisfaction. The use of various materials, paper collages, plaster, pigments, resin glue, etc. leads me to unexpected inspiration, which takes the viewer into a dreamlike world, an evocation... a different approach between the abstract and the figurative. I have participated in various solo and group exhibitions."
