BACKGROUND:

A student at the ENS de la Cambre in Paul Delvaux's studio, Alix Dufaux went on to teach drawing at the Athénée d'Auderghem. She also received scholarships to study in Paris and Rome. She is co-founder of the Académie des Beaux-Arts de Tamines.

WORK:

'Organised chaos' Through the imbalance of forms, some of which are inspired by architectural elements, the composition of the painting gives an effect of deconstruction, even chaos. However, these elements interact with each other, intersect, diverge and disappear, only to be reconstructed either within the canvas or beyond its limits. The imagination is led to extend the forms, which suddenly stretch out into a limitless space. The arrangement seeks to create an effect of rhythm, opposition, or precarious balance, all accentuated by arbitrary chiaroscuro and deliberately artificial colours: organised chaos.
