BIO :

Sandra Chères was born in 1969 near Paris. She then spent her childhood in Cannes.

CAREER :

At the age of 15, Sandra Chères left the south of France to study drawing and art history in Paris. After gaining extensive experience in the audiovisual industry, she devoted herself entirely to her painting.

WORK :

She unearths, tears, glues, rips and re-glues words or photos taken from old magazines... Sandra Chères projects, transforms and reappropriates images from films. We must reinvent reality, she cries out to us, break free from cinematic illusion, and bring Art into life. "I never paint a picture without including a piece of newspaper. For me, the newspaper has a history. It passes from hand to hand. It has a smell. The newspapers I find date from the 1920s to the 1950s. A nod to my grandmothers... who used to read these magazines."
