BIO :

Anna Piratti is an Italian artist born in 1973 in Dolo, in the province of Venice.

BACKGROUND :

She graduated from the Academy of Fine Arts in Venice, where she studied figurative art and its didactic aspects. During her early professional experiences, she was able to enrich her skills in computer-assisted graphic art and experiment with digital art. She then worked as a guide in various museums and devoted part of her time to organising numerous art workshops.

WORK :

These two aspects, technology on the one hand and disability on the other, are the sources of inspiration for her pictorial expression. Currently, her art is expressed through painting, digital art and performances (@anna.piratti.art). 'Vasi Comunicanti': The principle of communicating vessels is used here in a figurative sense and signifies an open system in relation to all its parts. Several forms of vases/cups communicate, speak, and relate to the spaces and people around them. They communicate different feelings. An explanation for each work is available upon request.
