ABOUT HIM :

Lives and works between Burgundy and the Paris region.

HIS BACKGROUND AND WORK :

Laurent Prudot's years of artistic exploration have reinforced his pursuit of an art form that is more controlled, more structured, more architecturally conceived and more abstract than ever before. In these irreducible regular squares and other almost obsessive vertical lines—created with a deliberate sense of repetition—the very concept of repetition and the nature of series are called into question. Following a period of free figuration—which already foreshadowed the succinct geometry revealed to us in these paintings—the artist brings to the fore what lay buried beneath layers of paint, glazes, or ever-thicker material, for doubt had prevailed over his true means of expression: abstraction. What one senses in Laurent Prudot's work is the process of exploring possible variations, the states of the surface between whites, blacks and/or colour. With great economy of means, the artist plays on the intensities between the strength of the colours and the white of the support.
