BIO :

Kellestom is a French artist living in Paris.

BACKGROUND :

She graduated from the École des Beaux-Arts in Paris. The works she now presents at her solo exhibitions in France and abroad (most recently in Singapore) are the culmination of a long creative journey.

WORK :

In her canvases, the oil paint is at times incisive, at times evanescent, and occasionally incorporates textural elements and collages. Ethereal colours blend with intense hues amidst shifting volumes.

Kellestom is passionate about movement – first and foremost, the movement of travel, which, from America to Asia, nourishes her work. But the movement that fascinates her even more is that which bears witness to the human presence everywhere, whether in turmoil or in a gentle stir. The artist brings to life figures as fleeting as they are eternal, who seem to emerge from a latent reality, from the fabric of the atmosphere. Kellestom presents an art of the interstice, interpreting the fine line between the Void of Life, the real and the imaginary, abstraction and figuration. She reveals to those who discover her paintings what Victor Hugo called the 'indistinct living beings of space'.
